Perfect Harmony Said to Exist Between Rebel Generals in Regard to Handling of Foreign Complications.

Chihuahua, Mex., March 14.—"Villa, the one time bandit, will be the next president of Mexico; that is his ambition, and despite all reports to the contrary, it will remain his ambition; he is either dead or president."

Is Friend's Statement.
This declaration was made today by a friend so close to Gen. Villa as to give authority to the assertion. It was prompted by reports that the coming to Chihuahua of Gen. Carranza, recognized as the civil head of the revolution, was to bring about conditions more satisfactory to foreign governments and to place in the seat of authority better advisors than Gen. Villa appeared to have in handling complications growing out of the killing of William S. Benton, a British subject.

That Villa and Carranza might meet and that they might publicly embrace as an evidence of their perfect harmony was given out as a possibility. Carranza Makes Concession.

Washington, March 14.—Gen. Carranza has consented to have American consuls look after the interests of foreigners in parts of Mexico under control of the constitutionalists where their own government has no consular representatives.

HOMESTEADER TO TRAVEL
2500 MILES BY OX-TEAM
WITH PRAIRIE SCHOONER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Regina, Sask., March 14.—Twenty-five hundred miles by ox-wagon is the journey on which Charles W. Wasmann started today. Leaving this city in a sway-backed prairie schooner mounted on runners, Wasmann intends to journey slowly southward, and, barring accident, arrive at Belleville, Ill., next September. He declared before leaving that he had no particular object in driving oxen except to surprise his friends and relatives in Belleville.

Wasmann is a Saskatchewan homesteader and before leaving secured the endorsement of the Regina board of trade in the hope that he expects to make twelve miles a day at first, but after the oxen become hardened, will try to cover twenty miles.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cleveland, March 14.—Woman Suffrage joined hands with the Bull Moose in a constructive way today when 600 Progressive and Suffragettes sat down to a "drinkless" "smokeless" banquet in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. Speakers were Miss Alice Carpenter, national organizer for the Progressive party in foreign states; Mr. Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester and candidate for the Bull Moose nomination for the United States Senate in Pennsylvania. Prominent Ohio Progressive leaders were also on the program. The banquet was staged under the auspices of the Cuyahoga county progressive club.

Minstrel Rehearsal: Members of the Lakota club will hold a rehearsal at the club rooms tomorrow afternoon for their minstrel show, which will be given at the Myers theatre in April.

LICENSE QUESTION
MAY BE SUBMITTEDMATTER IS BROUGHT BEFORE
MEMBERS OF THE CHURCH
BROTHERHOODS FRIDAY EVENING.

COMMITTEE WILL ACT

Feasibility of Circulating Petitions
Will be Decided by Presidents of Various Church Clubs.

Following the address of the Rev. T. D. Williams of the Cargill M. E. church made the announcement that the question of submitting the matter of license or no license to the voters of Janesville at the spring election had been under consideration by some of the gentlemen present. He moved that the feasibility of such a move be carefully considered by a committee composed of the president of the different church clubs represented and that a report be made at an early date. The motion was carried unanimously and the matter now rests with the committee.

Might Raise License.

Should the decision be favorable to a submission of the license question, petitions will be circulated. The Wisconsin local option law provides that the petitions must be signed by qualified electors to the number of ten per cent of the number of votes cast in the city for governor at the last general election, and that the petition shall be filed with the city clerk at least ten days prior to the first Tuesday in April. When such a petition is filed it is then the duty of the clerk to make an order providing for a submission of the question, giving due notice for the same after the manner of noticing the regular city election.

There has been some discussion on submitting the proposition of raising the license fee which is at present $500 in Janesville, and this alternative will undoubtedly be carefully considered by the committee. It is said to be practically certain that one or the other question will be voted upon at the coming election.

Start Madison Campaign.

Madison, March 14.—A determined and well financed campaign to make Madison a dry city will begin Sunday in the churches.

Dr. F. A. Baker, national superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, will address a mass meeting in the evening.

Candidates for aldermen who are known to have temperance propensities have been named in a petition.

Monday Night at City Hall.

Mrs. F. R. White, department president of the ladies of the G. A. R., has formulated plans for the institution of a G. A. R. ladies' circle. There will be a meeting of all sides from the order Monday evening at the hall, at which time the circle will be organized. Up to yesterday there were twenty-seven charter members, who had signed their names to the first list. All of these ladies are urged to be present, with any others wishing to join the circle. Comrades of the C. A. R. and Sons of Veterans are cordially invited. Mrs. White is from the veterans' home at Waupaca, and has been in Janesville for the past week, working out plans for this new organization.

SUFFRAGETTE SQUAD
BUSY WITH HAMMERSLondon Militants Break Window of Home of Secretary McKenna and Land in Jail.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, March 14.—A detachment of militant suffragettes armed with hammers smashed every pane of glass on the ground floor of the residence of Reginald McKenna, home secretary, in Smith square.

The six women arrived in the square in an automobile and took by surprise the policemen who keep continual guard over the homes of the state ministers. All of those who took part in the attack were arrested, however, as they were leaving. Mr. McKenna left for town for the weekend yesterday.

Given Prison Terms.

The six women gave false names. They were later arraigned at Westminster police court and each sentenced to two month's imprisonment with hard labor.

One of the prisoners who gave the name of Bosdicas said in court: "I wouldn't have given much for him, Mr. McKenna—if we had got him."

Another, Mrs. G. H. Smith, said: "A great thing for you we do not shoot."

A third woman pleaded guilty and said they had been driven to break Mr. McKenna's windows by "the great brutality shown to our beloved leader."

The magistrate in passing sentence said he had never heard a sadder or more deplorable story than that which had been told to the court.

"Rot! Rot!" exclaimed one of the women.

URGE NATIONAL WAR
OVER CHILD LABORNational Committee on Child Labor
Question Confer at New Orleans
For Campaign.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New Orleans, March 14.—Delegates to the tenth National Conference on Child Labor, which opens here tomorrow with a monster open-air meeting, were arriving here today from all sections of the country. Prominent among the leaders who will attend the sessions scheduled to close Wednesday, March 18, are Miss Jane Addams, Dr. Felix Adler, Senator Owen, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, Frank M. Leavitt, Owen R. Lovejoy and many others.

The purpose of the conference will be discussion of how the nation's good intentions of protecting its children from exploitation and premature work can best be carried out. It was planned by leaders today that "the nation's intentions are taken for granted at this conference, and no time will be spent in persuading people that a child under fourteen is too young to work in a factory."

One fiery Southerner, Wiley H. Swift of North Carolina, has declared that the intentions of the Southern states in the matter are not what they should be, and has two speeches.

"The Last Stand of the Last Bull Moose" which opposes Child Labor Legislation in the South, and "Why We Must Help to Get Good Child Labor Laws in the South," which will be delivered during the conferences, will be given close attention not only by the attending delegates and visitors but wherever there are people who are opposed to children toiling in factories and industrial plants.

The seriousness of the sessions will be lightened one day by a luncheon for the delegates at the Era Club and the Woman's Club of New Orleans, and the conferences will close with a reception and speeches Wednesday evening. Tomorrow's program will consist of addresses morning and evening on child labor and its attending ills, in all the pulpits of New Orleans. The formal opening of the conference is scheduled for Sunday afternoon when Solomon Wolff, chairman of the Louisiana Child Labor Committee, will preside at the opening meeting in Lafayette Square. Archibald P. Deneen of New Orleans, will deliver the opening prayer. The speakers tomorrow will include Miss Jane Addams, Dr. Felix Adler, Jane Addams, Governor Luther E. Hall, Senator Robert L. Owen, and Judge Joseph A. McCullough, of Greenville, S. C.

Linking Push
To Pull

When the manufacturer of a nationally advertised product comes into the columns of this newspaper with his announcements, he is spending money to pull customers into the store of the merchants who keep his wares.

It is up to the merchant to put his push behind the manufacturer's pull.

Push and pull together accomplish much.

Push and pull in this sense mean intelligent co-operation.

That means better service to the public.

And the natural rewards of better service are increased business and profits.

The linking of Push and Pull in the co-operative way is the right way.

The Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York, will be glad to answer any questions about co-operative work with dealers in newspaper advertising campaigns.

Speak.

Most of the farmers who were in the city this morning to attend the Mid-Winter Fair attended the meeting of the Rock County Order of the Wisconsin Experimental Association, held at the west side Auditorium.

The report of Secretary Noyes Raesler of the association indicated the pronounced success which Rock county grain growers had achieved during the past season. He reviewed the record of their winnings at various fairs and competitions.

Following the report of the secretary the chairman announced that the election of officers would be in order. The following selections were made: George Hemingway, to succeed himself as president; A. G. Russell, to succeed himself as vice president; and E. L. Bingham to succeed Noyes Raesler as secretary and treasurer. Mr. Raesler stated that it would be impossible for him to continue in the office longer on account of other duties.

The committee appointed to audit books of the secretary and treasurer was composed of M. S. Kellogg, A. Adstin and E. L. Bingham.

H. Lunz, the state inspector of grains, gave a talk on the importance of obtaining pure bred seeds in raising good crops. He said that whenever he went there was a call for pedigree seed, but the farmer cannot get in touch with some organization unless he belongs to some organization like the Rock County Association. Through the medium the seed is advertised and easily sold.

"We have a laboratory," said Mr. Lunz, "to inspect seeds to find traces of noxious weeds, and see if the seeds have high germinating quality. Send samples of the seeds you have to Madison and we will tell you whether you have a high grade seed or not. The cost is only that of the postage."

The judges finished their work today and all the entries have been inspected and passed on. The Mid-Winter Fair is still a project of guaranteed success and much of its success is due to the spirit of the Rock county farmers who exhibited their products.

The list of prize winners of today is as follows:

Pedigreed Grains:
Winter wheat: First prize, F. H. Raesler;
Spring wheat: First prize, F. H. Raesler; second prize, A. Austin;
Rye: First prize, F. R. Raesler;
50 ears Golden Glow: First prize, A. Austin; second prize, F. H. Raesler.Best single ear of Golden Glow: F. H. Raesler.
Oats: First prize, F. H. Raesler; second prize, A. Austin; Barley: First prize, F. H. Raesler; second prize, A. Austin.
10 ears of Silver King: First prize, F. H. Raesler; second prize, A. Austin.

The serious business of the sessions will be lightened one day by a luncheon for the delegates at the Era Club and the Woman's Club of New Orleans, and the conferences will close with a reception and speeches Wednesday evening.

The opening prayer tomorrow will be delivered by Dr. Felix Adler, Jane Addams, Governor Luther E. Hall, Senator Robert L. Owen, and Judge Joseph A. McCullough, of Greenville

URGES ERADICATION OF WAR AND SALOON

REV. CHARLES M. SHELDON OF TOPEKA TALKS AT UNION
BROTHERHOOD BAN-QUET.

UNITY OF CHURCHMEN

Lay Aside Denominational Strife and Work for Real Brotherhood Is Advice of Kansas Preacher.

Eliminate war, abolish the saloon and brewery from the United States, eradicate denominational strife, and effect a brotherhood in reality of the church of all churches—these things were urged by the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon of Topeka, Kansas, in his address at the Union Brotherhood banquet of the Janesville churches at the Y. M. C. A. Friday evening.

Three hundred men were served at the banquet, which was served in faultless style by the ladies of the several churches represented. It was a notable gathering and there was not a man there who was not deeply stirred by the address of the evening.

People's Real Factor.

"When I come into a city I am usually met at the depot by a committee of citizens who immediately suggest that they would be pleased to show me over the town," said Rev. Sheldon in opening his address. "They take me down the main street and point out this or that fine building and skyscraper, describing its beauty and cost, its palatial residences, or magnificent picture galleries and restaurants. I wish that I might sometime be shown about a city where my attention would rather be called to the police matron, to the principals and teachers in the schools, to the school children, with complimentary comments on their abilities and possibilities; and then I would like to be taken into the residence districts where is found the average citizen and his wife, who have lived longer for years and have never applied for a divorce, who live together with their children in happiness in their home, who are members of the church and Sunday schools. I would like to see these people, and have my attention called to them particularly. I would like to have the committee say, 'See these fine average citizens of ours, see these school children; we have hundreds of them here in our town and we are prouder of them than of anything else.'

"All these things center about people, about talkative men and women, and I want to show them here tonight four things that you can do to help humanity and to make this world a far better place to live in.

Avoid Denominationalism.

"The first great thing that should be accomplished is a getting together of all church people. I believe that the denominational life of the church has had its day and we are now ready to write a new chapter in church history in which the emphasis will be on federation and church union. We have already taken some important steps in that direction, for in Canada all denominations have been reduced to three, but I know of one country in Indiana where there are thirty-eight denominations. That is a waste of time and power and money."

Mr. Sheldon called attention to numerous instances where Protestant churches in this country had banded together to achieve greater results. He pointed to the efficacy of union, sympathy between the members of different denominations. "I want to see the time when the church men of a town will unite to help a boy who is burning in sin or to save a girl who is going to shame."

In the second place Mr. Sheldon urged the establishment of a real brotherhood of manhood, in this connection he told of the hundreds of foreign students who are attending American universities, of the thousands of foreigners who are crowding to our shores every year, of the many different nationalities and races which are striving to learn our manners and customs. "Help them," urged Rev. Sheldon. "Rub off your race prejudices and welcome all these men as brothers in true Christian sense of the word."

Urge Need of Peace.

"We can make this a better world and we should," continued the speaker, "by rubbing off from the face of the earth and by disengaging this wasteful race of the nations to keep up with each other in armaments. We haven't got past the barbarism of building more battleships. If I had been present the other day when a great warship was launched on the Atlantic coast while crowds cheered with glee, bare, I would have kept my hands off my head and would have uttered never a word. The time has come when our thoughts should be relegated to the couches. The best thing we could do with them would be to fit them with missionaries and send them around the world."

The United States doesn't want war with any nation in spite of the prattle of certain yellow newspapers about Japan and Mexico. I want to say right here that I am proud of the stand that the president of the United States has taken on the Mexican situation. "We don't want war and we can adjust our difficulties without it. There are only two wars going on at present in Mexico and in the Balkans, and I believe they are the last of history. We are coming near the end and the Spirit of God is more powerful than the men who would promote war."

Mr. Sheldon spoke vehemently when he talked of the fourth means to better humanity, the abolition of the saloon and brewery. He lauded the progress of Kansas, where he said prohibition prohibits and where the liquor laws are enforced as much as any others. Jails are empty, poorhouses are unknown and the people are prosperous, all as a result of forty years of state wide prohibition.

"Economically and financially the saloon is blunder," said Rev. Sheldon, "and we have proved this in houses, where the people are better clothed, better housed, where we have better and more powerful schools and homes and churches, and a healthier and happier people because you can't get liquor there even in a drug store. The man in Kansas who is sick and thinks he needs some liquor, will have to take milk instead."

The tide of prohibition is spreading over the whole nation, declared the speaker, who believed that the ultimate solution would be a law which would prohibit the manufacture of intoxicants, making a violation of the same a crime. He predicted that the national democratic party would place a plank in their platform for national prohibition, and that he would live to see the time when the saloon and brewery no longer existed in the United States.

"These are the four great things which I would impress upon you," said Mr. Sheldon in closing. "I am a great believer in the power of men to achieve and to accomplish. There is nothing worth so much as the little child; it is humanity that counts; God gave the people; it is the hope of the world that Christian men everywhere unite and work to make this world a better place to live in."

Committee in Charge.

Credit is due the committee in charge of the banquet for the success of the gathering. The members were: A. M. Fisher and Dr. S. T. Kidder of the Congregational Brotherhood; H. M. Black and the Rev. T. D. Williams of the Methodist; S. B. Heddles and the Rev. George E. Parsole of the United Brethren; J. K. Jensen and the Rev. E. O. Hoffmeister of the English Lutheran and O. A. Sanderson and the Rev. J. G. Hazen of the Baptists. Hon. John M. Whitehead presided as chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker. Music during the banquet hour was furnished by the Eurydice orchestra, and vocal solos were given by Alfred Olson of Janesville and Mr. West of Evansville.

We can smile and still be happy, for of glee there is no dearth;
And whatever else they corner, they —Washington Herald.

The writer of this helpful sentiment was inspired with a spirit of hopeful optimism and he was true to himself, the contagion of his presence was a force for good along the highway where his lot was cast.

A woman in writing Dr. Evans of the Chicago Tribune staff, said, the other day, that her trouble was sleeplessness, caused by rapid heart action, and that she was so busy counting her pulse, and fearing instant death, that she found it impossible to close her eyes and sleep until exhausted.

The old doctor said to her, "Go to bed and forget it. Let your pulse alone and when you relax, and let yourself go, your heart action will be alright."

The experience of this nervous woman is repeated by a good many people who have never consulted Dr.
Evans or anybody else. Some of them are afraid to go to bed because they are impressed with the notion that they will never wake up.

A man came into the office the other day, doubled up with pain and scared out of his boots because he thought he had an attack of appendicitis. "I said to him, Where do you think your appendix are located? He pointed out the spot, and then his friend laughed and said, That's pretty near right, only they are on the other side, and several degrees higher up. The man went away feeling better and in half an hour had forgotten all about the pain and the appendix.

The old axiom, "Know thyself" is so religiously observed, by some people that they attempt to analyze the human body through a knowledge of anatomy and physiology, and they become as expert as the disciples of Dr. Hicks on the weather.

It is said that you can drive through the country and pick out the farmers who rely on Dr. Hicks' Almanac as authority on when to work and when to get ready for a storm, as indications suggest that they are looking for a storm most of the time.

The cyclone and tornado are so rare that the average man takes the chances and jogs along with his work and saves the worry of the timid soul with over-wrought imagination.

The same principle applies to disease, and while every man owes it to himself to conserve his resources, the fact should not be overlooked that the human body was built for service, down to the age limit. And it is better for a man not to know that he has a heart or stomach, than to know so much about them, that the knowledge causes constant worry and anxiety.

Some people enjoy poor health, and they never weary of talking about it.
If there is any disease under the sun that they haven't experienced with, it has not yet been discovered.

They are their own diagnosticians, and no physician is wise enough to tell them what they do not already know. They are a pest in any community for their diseased mind is contagious, and healthy people become invalids through contamination.

It is reported that one town in the county sent eleven cases of appendicitis to the Rochester hospital in a single week, not long ago. It is safe to say that the most of them might better have followed the Milwaukee doctor's advice, when he said, "Don't carry your appendix around in a bottle."

The old man who died at ninety-three a time ago, and never owned a tooth brush or consulted a dentist, had his appendix, and pretty much everything else in fact, without knowing it, and large because he had never taken an inventory of his physical assets.

This dissertation on the appendix, and other calamities, may sum for a field from the text, but the condition of both body and mind has so much to do with our outlook on life that it is vital importance.

It is an old saying that the shortest route to a man's heart is by the way of his stomach, and the state ment often proves true. The dis-petic always sees the dark side of life and until wholesome digestion is restored, his other faculties are out of commission.

The old man who tails up the grade with slow and fattering step, halting every now and then to rest, envies the boy who rushes by with no thought of weariness, and often wishes that he could be a boy again, but his race is nearly run and he has no cause to complain. He has gone along with his generation, trying to get out of life all there was in it.

The wife, who has been his companion for half a century, and the home, which has sheltered them both show the ravages of time, and they have grown old together.

The grandchildren look into their wrinkled faces and wonder if they will ever look like that. They discover that the heart of the old people is filled with love and sympathy, and the generations come and go, interwoven by the golden cords of love.

The human family enjoy so much in common, that there is no stage of the journey when thankfulness should not fill the heart with joy and gladness. God's free air and sunshine never grow old and the fountain of life is a perpetual fountain.

The people who complain the most about the hardships of life, are not usually the sufferers. The boy who works his way through school and out to the gateway of the great thoroughfares is seldom a complainer. He leaves that to his classmate who has everything furnished but is never satisfied.

The greatest heroes, and they are found in every community, are the shut in people, who are deprived of the most common pleasures, and yet never complain.

The largest class of pessimists now comprise the people who are waiting for some dire calamity to befall the nation. The democratic administration looks bad to them, and they will be disappointed if the country moves on in the even tenor of its way.

The fact is overlooked that the country rests on a more solid foundation than politics, and that while men who pose as statesmen may annoy the body politic for a time, that no serious disturbance will result.

A nation that is producing ten billions of new wealth from the soil every year, and employing an army of men, at good wages in its industries, will go along in spite of obstructionists.

While we were not consulted, as to existence, and in a measure are not responsible for being here, yet we ought to be mighty thankful that our forebears were so fortunate as to be located in the fairest land under the sun.

It is worth something to be a citizen of this great commonwealth, where destiny is within the grasp of every earnest seeker and honest worker.
The shadows, sooner or later, cross every life, but they only serve to make the sunlight more brilliant by contrast.

The bright side of life, like the sunny side of the street, is always the attractive side and more difficult to find when the mind is in normal condition. It pays to be an optimist.

Dane County to Front.
And now Dane county is preparing for an anti-high taxation convention.

It is in Dane county that a great deal of the proceeds of high tax extortions are disbursed—but that doesn't help the honest farmers. It doesn't help the average man or woman working for living outside of the capitol or the university. On the contrary, these citizens of Dane county are exploited just as much as others throughout the state—and they are tired of it. No doubt the Dane county protest will be vigorous. No wonder that the state administration crowds grows and more nervous.—Milwaukee Rec-

"The Necklace of Rumeses," a three-part Edison detective story, is the feature of tonight's program. The production is international in its scope, having been produced in America, England, France and Italy. Some of the most noted scenes in the Old World are its settings. Mr. Marc McDermott plays the part of Detective Im-bret, and is assisted by a thoroughly competent cast.

The third adventure of little Andy, "Andy Goes on the Stage," is also shown tonight.

Tomorrow's program includes the two-part Edison feature "His Wife," with Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby. Also, a large number of the best Edison players in "With the Eyes of Love."

"A Colonel in Chains," the fifth installment of "The Adventures of Kathlyn," is shown next Sat-

Lost Money by Dishonesty.

Some years ago, when silver had a much higher value than at present and the Mexican dollar was worth intrinsically about 95 cents, a counterfeit Mexican dollar came into the possession of the United States assayers at the Philadelphia mint. They assayed the coin and found it to be worth intrinsically $1.00. It seems that the miae from which the counterfeiter got their metal produced silver that was strong in gold. Thus the forgers lost money by making counterfeits.

Members Feel New Date More Suitable—Interesting Program Given Last Evening.

Monday evenings will be the time for the meetings of the Dramatic club after Friday, March 20, according to a motion passed last evening at the regular meeting. The program last evening was highly entertaining, although the customary play reading feature was omitted. The first number was a paper read by Miss Lillian Olson on the life of Edwin Booth. This was followed by a paper on the Art of Edwin Booth by Mrs. May Buckmaster, and the final number was a paper on the life and art of Mary Anderson, read by Miss Kate Nelson. Dramatic news was given by members of the club. Much enthusiasm is shown in the work of the club.

WORKING SWINDLING DEAL OVER ESTATES

ENGLISH SERVICE MAN GIVES
DESCRIPTION OF NATIVE
AFRICAN TRIBE.

CABLES FROM ENGLAND

Former Prime Minister Balfour To Take Prominent Part in Setting Irish Question.
(By ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, March 14.—The missing estate swindle is evidently again being worked extensively in the United States. The embassy here is overwhelmed with letters from American "heirs" asking how best to secure estates due them. Some letters indicate the victims were induced to part with all their property to pay expenses of unusual representatives of the chancery court.

Ten years ago the state department at Washington received so many requests about missing estates in Chancery that a special investigation was made by Henry White, then first secretary of the American embassy here. He reported that it would be practically impossible for any American to secure an estate from the court of chancery. The report showed that the largest estates constantly spoken of as "dormant in chancery" or "awaiting claimant in Bank of England" were purely imaginary, and usually the invention of swindlers who obtain money for the prosecution of claims to fictitious fortunes.

Exposed Swindle.

The funds in Chancery open to claim are few, averaging less than $1,500 each, two only approaching $75,000, and most of them inevitably would consume their own value in the expense of recovery. The fullest proofs of genealogy are demanded, and in the case of Americans such proofs are almost impossible. Even the clearest claims are usually barred by the statute of limitations.

About the time of this report the inquiries became so heavy that they overloaded the correspondence of the embassy, and a printed form of reply was adopted and this is in use today.

Last year when one of these swindlers presented a number of alleged descendants in America that the estate of their ancestor, Sir John Drake, was ready for distribution by the court of chancery, the swindle was widely exposed by the American newspapers, with the result that the inquiries practically ceased until within the past few weeks.

Given Apart.

Mrs. Scott, mother of the Captain Scott who lost his life in returning from the South Pole, has been offered one of the apartments in Hartwell Court, Palace. These are all the disposal of the king, who usually grants them to widows of men who have distinguished themselves in national service. Although the apartments are finely appointed they are not always a delight to those to whom the king offers them rent free. It is customary for the tenants to pay the rates and taxes, which amount to something like $200 a month. For this price a fairly good cottage can be obtained in the vicinity. Hampton Court has its disadvantages, among them gossip and misunderstandings as the life is somewhat like that of a community. Many of the apartments are very high up and have no elevators. This inconvenience is not always met by a basket on the end of a strong line let down to the postman or tradesman. On the other hand the rooms are very beautiful and the tenants have the use of the gardens in the early morning before the crowds of visitors arrive.

Investigate Tribe.

P. Amaury Talbot of the Nigerian political service, who has traveled much through Africa studying the various tribes, says the Ibibios, natives of Southern Nigeria, who are of such a low type that they are called "pig-faced," rank among the most ancient Southern Nigerian tribes, and speak different dialects of a very old and primitive tongue.

British Interested.

British participation is justified on coaling operations also, while Germans are interested as owners of an important meteorological station there.

If the memorandum submitted by the Norwegian government is confirmed by the conference, Spitzbergen will be declared neutral territory open to all nations, but under the control of three northern powers. The administration would be in the hands of a commission of three members—a Russian, Swede and Norwegian—the expenses of government being met by land taxes and other arrangements for revenue, subject to assessment of all the signatory powers. It is proposed that this international convention shall be renewable every eighteen years.

Northernmost Post.

Spitzbergen is 625 miles from the north pole. It was from one of these islands two unsuccessful attempts have been made to reach the pole by balloon. The Swedish Engineer S. A. Andree, assayed the trip in 1897. He was never heard from after he left the island. Walter W. Wellman, an American, tried to same thing ten years later, but never got far away from the base.

Slaves Sacrificed.

Quaint burial customs prevail. Slaves are frequently sacrificed at the death of a chief and buried with him. Until prohibited by the government, chiefs were buried in their houses with strange ritual and sacrifice. A burial chamber was prepared underneath one of the rooms, and in this the chief's body was placed. His best loved wife and two of the most beautiful of his slaves entered the room and seated themselves at a table opposite the lord. After some ceremonial all but the women withdrew, the chamber was sealed up, and the unfortunate women were left to a lingering death.

Seek Plumage.

A petition in favor of the plumage bill to be presented to the house of commons has been signed by 21,581 persons who visited the bird court of the exhibition of Australian manufacturers last year. So strong is Australian opinion in favor of the bill that is stated in official circles that had the petition been circulated publicly, it would undoubtably have been signed by ninety-five per cent of the population.

This intense feeling is due apart from humanitarian reasons, to the conviction that systematic slaughter of birds for the plumage market is having a most detrimental effect upon agriculture. Public opinion is also increased by the fact that prohibited skins and feathers are smuggled out of the country in spite of the vigilance of the authorities, and it is recognized that only the closure of the home markets can effectively put an end to the traffic.

Oyster Discovery.

The interesting discovery has been made, according to a consular report from Africa, of the adaptability of the oyster to change in its surroundings.

The inspector of fisheries in the Arzew district, states that he found that as the result of the slow closing of the mouth of the river La Macta, by a sand-bar, the edible oyster had completely adapted itself to the extreme fresh water. Oysters were found thriving in parts of the river entirely devoid of salt. It is well known from this, adds the inspector, that the adaptability of the oyster to changes in its surroundings—provided this takes place slowly—is very great, a fact that augurs well for the success of oyster farming.

Versed on Home Rule.

Arthur Balfour, one prime minister and a former unionist leader in the house of commons, is to take a very prominent part in the negotiations for the settlement of the Irish question. He acquired a very extensive knowledge of the situation during his term as chief secretary for Ireland, and he has had experience in the handling of delicate political problems, not the least of which was that arising over the split in the unionist party over tariff reform.

When an agreement on the Irish question was first mooted last year, Balfour Law, the present unionist leader, immediately called upon Balfour for his assistance. Soon after the opening of parliament Mr. Balfour had a long audience with the king and has been keeping in close touch with the leaders at Westminster.

Shares King's View.

The general opinion is that Mr. Balfour shares King George's view that some compromise should be arrived at, and that will go a long way toward bringing the extreme unionists into line. As it is the large majority of the party desire a settlement but difficulty has been found in inducing the Ulsterites and the English "diehards" to come around to the same view. When Mr. Balfour speaks, especially if it is thought that he expresses the wishes of the king, these irreconcilables will follow him. While Mr. Balfour has attacked the home rule bill from every angle, and has referred to it as "lopsided federalism" not once has he referred to the Ulster threat of revolution of Ulster's general opposition.

Exposed Swindle.

The funds in Chancery open to claim are few, averaging less than $1,500 each, two only approaching $75,000, and most of them inevitably would consume their own value in the expense of recovery. The fullest proofs of genealogy are demanded, and in the case of Americans such proofs are almost impossible. Even the clearest claims are usually barred by the statute of limitations.

About the time of this report the inquiries became so heavy that they overloaded the correspondence of the embassy, and a printed form of reply was adopted and this is in use today.

Last year when one of these swindlers presented a number of alleged descendants in America that the estate of their ancestor, Sir John

Drake, was ready for distribution by the court of chancery, the swindle was widely exposed by the American newspapers, with the result that the inquiries practically ceased until within the past few weeks.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE "AFTER THIRTY" YEARS.

It is never too early to start making something worth while of your life; nor is it ever too late. A letter friend complains to me in a recent letter that she is past the age of success. "My life has been a failure," she says. "I feel that there are possibilities with me, and yet somehow one thing or another has stood in my way and I have never accomplished anything worth while. And now it is too late."

How old do you suppose this woman is?

Only 24! Just think of it, and she is foolish enough to say it is too late!

"After thirty" is the title of a group of tales in one of the popular magazines, which deals with this period of life as if it were a distinct epoch. And, indeed, thirty does seem like a very black dividing line. It is the end of first youth. We feel as if we must have declared ourselves by then if we are ever to amount to much.

And yet, think over the lives of some of the men and women whose names spell success in the various lines of human endeavor, and you will find that there are many of them whose success came "after thirty." At the age of twenty-nine Charlotte Bronte wrote:

"Meantime life wears away. I shall soon be thirty and I have done nothing yet." She was between thirty-one and two when her first novel, Jane Eyre, was published. She only lived to be thirty-nine, and yet in those eight "after thirty" years, in spite of miserable health, household cares and painful bereavement, she managed to build for herself a name that will probably last as long as English literature.

It seems surprising to us, as a measure of success, but it certainly is a measure of recognition. Therefore, you will be interested to know that although he had been writing ever since he was a child, Stevenson never made over $250 a year up to the time he was twenty-eight.

At the age of thirty-nine, Grant was a poverty stricken store-keeper in a country town. He had never accomplished anything of note. Then the opportunity came and a phoenix from the ashes of failure he rose—one of the greatest generals the world has ever known. So Grant also proved that it is never too late.

Carroll, after having completely failed as a tradesman, took to painting at the age of twenty-six. He was seventy years old when the world finally recognized him as a genius of the first water.

Take courage, then, all who have crossed the first great divide, and who feel as Charlotte Bronte did, that they "have done nothing yet."

The years "after thirty" may bring you many wonderful things.

Take heart and remember, it is never too early to start making something worth while of your life not ever too late.

Heart and Home Problems

By MARY E. BETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a friend who was selfish, to say the least. Young girl seventeen years old and have been going with a girl a little older than myself for about nine years. A short time ago I met a young man and I have been going with him since. He has been up to my house and has been introduced to my mother and father; neither objects to my going with him and they think he is very nice.

About a week ago this girl I have been going with so long I went with a steady fellow that she would have to get along. A girl friend to go around with. Now, I only need to go with this fellow twice a week, and I do not think it is necessary for me to give him up just so that I can go with her. I have met her on the street since she told me this, and we speak to each other and that is all. Do you think I did right in giving her up so I could go with him? I think if she acts this way now she will do the same thing later on. She will be nineteen years old next June.

R. H. O. S.

I do not see how any girl can expect to keep another girl's entire friendship under such terms. Your sleeved, long kid or silk gloves of a color to match the dress or the color decided by the bride must be worn.

(4) Hose and shoes should match the dress unless the bridesmaids decide to all wear white hose and slippers.

(5) The chief duty of a bridesmaid is to look pretty. The bridesmaids precede the bride up the aisle and stand at one side during the ceremony. The chief bridesmaid and maid of honor takes the bride's bouquet and helps her with the glove when the ring is placed. The bridesmaids follow the bride, with the ushers, after the ceremony.

Tooth Talks

Most people now days use a brush of some size or other, to assist them in getting thoroughly cleaned up while taking a bath, and no doubt most people wash out the brush with plenty of soap and water after using it for the bath. Even a floor scrubbing brush needs to be cleaned once in a while for best results. Now how many people cleanse their tooth brush after using it? Sometimes one tooth brush does for the whole family, and never gets washed up again.

That a large number of bacteria are always present in the mouth is a well known fact, and that after a brush is once used in the mouth its bristles must have numerous bacteria sticking to them.

Every one knows that soap is a great cleanser; it not only helps to remove ordinary dirt but it is an antiseptic and germicide also. A tooth brush should always be washed out with soap and water after using, unless some other system equally as effective is used. Soap is not only cheap but very effective. All tooth powders and tooth pastes contain soap, but not enough to leave the brush in good condition. So we must cleanse our brush with soap of some other germicide after we use it. Don't be afraid to use plenty of soap, the expense will not hurt you. Not much soap will be needed and clean water will soon dispose of the soap after it has done its work.

There may be better ways than the above system but we do not always have the mso handy.

One of the chief recommendations for the casserole is that it is a fine help in using up left-over meats. Take two cupsfuls of boiled rice, two cupsfuls of chopped or sliced meat that has been left from dinner, a cup of brown or cream sauce, one tablespoonful of chopped onion, one of parsley, a teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of red pepper. Line the casserole a half inch deep with the boiled rice.

In another dish melt a tablespoonful of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour and stir until smooth, then add the seasonings, the brown or white sauce, the meat, and finish the top with another layer of rice. Steam in a pan of hot water for 45 minutes, then serve with tomato sauce. This may be made in a granite dish, unmolded on a platter, and the tomato sauce poured around it.

(3) Is it necessary to wear long white kid gloves?

(4) Should the hose be the same color of the dress or the shoes?

(5) What are the duties of the bridesmaids?

(1) The bridesmaids furnish their own dresses, unless the bride wishes them to dress alike in a certain design and color; then she may furnish the dresses.

(2) The bridesmaids keep the dresses.

(1) Why not do as the girls do and massage your face? Get some cocoa butter at the drug store. Pat your face with hot water so that the pores of the skin are opened, then warm some of the cocoa butter in your hands and massage your face with it in a circular motion. Do this twice a day and you will find your face looking plumper after a month or two. Undoubtedly you will fill out more in every way when you are a few years older. Just now you are growing and you have not yet achieved your proper proportion.

(2) Boxing is good exercise for a boy. It is apt to keep one thin if you do too much of it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it proper for the bride to furnish the dress for the bridesmaids?

(2) So, should they keep them or return them to the bride after the wedding?

"MRS. GOVERNOR" ON THE SENATE ROLLS

Mrs. Carolyn B. Shelton.

Among the scores of ex-governors of states on the senate rolls at Washington there is one woman. This "Mrs. Governor" is Mrs. Carolyn B. Shelton, secretary to Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon. She is also, clerk to the committee on foreign affairs. Some years ago while she was clerk to Chamberlain when he was governor of Oregon she acted as governor of that state on several occasions. The Oregon constitution at that time provided that in the absence of the governor his secretary should be "acting governor."

WOMEN MUST HAVE HUSBY WITH THEM, BEFORE BEING PRESENTED TO THE COURT

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

Rome, March 14.—American women coming to Rome will hereafter please bring their husbands, that is, if they want to be presented to court. This is the warning which Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page is sending to the United States. He has just dug up in the archives of the American embassy an ancient regulation to this effect, and it is to be rejuvenated and put into force once more.

The rule was originally intended to prevent the presentation at court of divorcees, not only King Victor and Queen Elena but also Queen Mother Margerita being greatly opposed to divorce. While the American divorce colony at Rome admits that it is right down peevish at the new regulation, the fair divorcees declare they are at least finding some consolation in the fact, that, if being without husbands they cannot be presented to the court at least consider themselves a little bit better than those divorcees who have acquired a second husband and who thus cannot be excluded by Ambassador Page's regulation.

The TABLE.

Savory Onions.—Select young onions. Lay the onions in a sauce pan with a very little salted water and simmer for ten minutes. Drain off the water; pour over the onions a small cupful of beef stock and cook for ten minutes longer. Remove the onions to a hot dish, while you thicken the gravy left in the pan with a heaping teaspoonful of browned flour rubbed to a paste in the same quantity of butter. When you have a smooth brown sauce season it with a dash of nutmeg. Last of all stir in the minced onions, thickly dredged with a dash of cinnamon and nutmeg. Turn the soaked onions into a bowl and stir them into the gravy. Add a dash of salt and a dash of pepper to taste. Pour this sauce over the onions.

Peppers Stuffed With Fish.—Trim the stem ends of your green peppers so that they will stand up. Cut off the tips and, with a small sharp knife, extract the seeds and as much of the tough fiber as will come away. Mince white fish fine, moisten it with a white sauce, season and fill the peppers with this mixture. Put in the oven long enough to heat through and serve.

Fig Pudding—Soak a cupful of bread crumbs in a cupful of milk for half an hour. Chop enough suet to make a quarter of a cupful; beat it with a dash of nutmeg. Last of all stir in the onions.

A Medical Book Free

By Dr. N. A. Goddard

Modern Methods of treating Chronic Diseases without Operation, has just come from the pen of Dr. Goddard the Milwaukee Specialist and is one of the most interesting as well as instructive little books the doctor has ever written.

If you are a sufferer from Appendicitis, Rupture Gall Stone, Colic, Goitre or Chronic diseases of a private nature, you should avail yourself of his offer to send you this valuable little book free simply for the asking. A postal will bring it to you, in a plain wrapper. Many so-called surgical diseases have been proven to be curable by medical treatment, more safely and cheaply by modern medical methods than was believed possible a few years ago.

After you have read this little book, you can consult Dr. Goddard on his monthly visits to Janesville, free of charge and have the satisfaction of knowing that you have secured the expert opinion of a reputable specialist in these matters. If you have been advised to submit to an operation, surely do not fail to consult him before undergoing such an operation. His advice may save you many weeks of suffering, loss of time and expense, possibly your life. Dr. Goddard will be at the Myers Hotel, Janesville, Tuesday, March 24, and he makes no charges for a friendly visit, hours 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Address DR. GODDARD, 121 Wisconsin St., Milwaukee Wis.

He is now first assistant to Rhoda who probably is the greatest horse trainer today in the world, and has something over fifty head of horses now before the public, is spending the week end here with his parents and friends. Mr. Collier came up from Chicago, where he had been with the Royal horses at the Hippodrome for three weeks. He returns to Chicago Sunday and Monday they will ship the nineteen head which they have in Chicago to Denver, where they will join the Sells-Floto and Buffalo Bill shows for the summer. The show will open March 24th at Albuquerque, New Mexico, which will be an early start for a show. Seven head of Mr. Royal's high school horses will travel with the Barnum show the coming season, which opens in New York week after next at Madison Square Garden. He will also furnish small groups of trained horses for other shows and about thirty head will be worked by Mr. Royal and young Collier with the Sells-Floto and Buffalo Bill shows.

An automatic circus will be put on the road this spring by B. L. Wallace and other prominent showmen. The name of the new show has not been made public, but the details have been care for and Chicago promoters are taking care of the financial end of it. According to Mr. Wallace the entire show will be transported on motor trucks of special design to give them the genuine circus appearance. Only good sized cities will be played and the first ten sets will be spent on the various sets in Chicago. Following Chicago, the northern part of Indiana, Illinois and Ohio will be visited.

Several years ago Hans Wagner, the Pittsburgh ball player, attempted to launch such an enterprise, but was unfortunate in not being able to associate himself with practical showmen and was forced to give up the project. The advertising will be done by a brigade in a monster truck of unique design and electrical device.

"COUSIN PAUL"

Margaret Freeman, 24 years old and an orphan, had not been rich she would have been called a crank. As it was, they said she was eccentric.

Her friends finally struck what they called a happy medium, and characterized her as an old-fashioned girl. That seemed to cover everything, even to her prostration in matrimonial affairs.

To be frank about it, Margaret was a bit old-fashioned in many of her ideas. She had never written a pamphlet nor made a speech on the subject, but she was a believer in woman's rights.

It she met with a working man with his arm in a sling she had time to ask questions and money to leave with him. A boarding house to shelter servant girls out of place and money for a fortnight was one of her fads. She had prosecuted numerous truck drivers for cruelty to animals, and she had brought about the removal of policemen for brutality.

It was known that she had assisted two or three young men through college and two or three girls to finish their course in an art school, but she repudiated all attempts to make her out a philanthropist. The idea that she was old-fashioned suited her letter.

The old-fashioned girl accepted the invitation and duly appeared, but Paul at the last moment was called in another direction. Then the good cousin's husband went West and fell off the back of a bronco and had his legs broken and the wife was called to come and nurse him.

The manor house could not be shut up at a moment's notice and here the old-fashioned girl proposed one of her old-fashioned ideas. She would remain and take charge. There were five servants to manage and Margaret felt equal to the occasion.

There is nothing original in observing that Providence works along curious lines. The cousin had not been gone three days when there came a telegram from Paul Hastings stating that he had changed his mind and would arrive next day.

He had not yet been informed of the presence of the old-fashioned girl and she saw no need of his knowing it for a few days. She was the housekeeper and the housekeeper she would remain.

In no one thing was Miss Margaret more old-fashioned than in the way she sized up men.

As an heiress and a good-looking one at that, she had numerous admirers. They admired her looks and they admired her money, but very few of them admired the way they were read and laid on the shelf.

She made her comparisons with men of other days—days when even the man with a shovel on his shoulder betrayed the chivalry of his nature and was prompt to do honor to her sex. She did not look upon love as a "notion," nor upon matrimony as a convenience and a partnership.

Of course, Margaret had women friends who said that it was too bad—referring to her old-fashioned ideas—and who had candidates to bring forward.

One of them was a cousin, who felt that she was only doing her cousinly duty when she entered into a little conspiracy to bring about a meeting between the old-fashioned girl and Paul Hastings, who was second cousin to both.

The plan was to invite Margaret to her country house for a stay of several weeks and to have Paul arrive soon after, as if by accident. It may even be that Paul was coached after the occasion, but if so it was all for the depot, two miles away. He was caught.

As the coming guest had not gone to the trouble of mentioning the hour thus obliged to make his debut in a farmer's wagon.

He did not seem to understand, as and the moment he entered the house he demanded to know why a carriage had not been sent. Farther, why his cousin had left without informing him. Farther, still, why he had been put to all this trouble for an old-fashioned girl, who had not yet arrived and probably would not arrive.

The housekeeper came forward and explained as best she could, and after considerable tumult things settled down for half a day.

One of the notions of the old-fashioned girl was that a woman could serve and still be entitled to the respect due a lady. She had stood on her dignity, but had been treated with arrogance, and there was more to come. Mr. Hastings spent the afternoon unpacking his trunks, ordering all hands about and taking formal possession of the house.

As the dinner hour approached Margaret had a doubt. Should she as the housekeeper sit at the table with the guest?

A sense of the eternal unfitness of things of today said "no"; on the contrary, her old-fashioned notions said "yes." There was no compromise and she took the head of the table.

Young Mr. Paul looked at her in surprise and flushed up, but for certain reasons he went no further and the meal was eaten in painful silence. His reasons developed an hour later when he found the housekeeper seated on the veranda.

He lit a strong cigar without so much as a nod in her direction, threw himself into a rocking chair near by and after a yawn, to show how bored he was, he proceeded to say:

"Out in the country the lines are not so tightly drawn, I suppose, and your mistress may have hinted to you that she expected a young woman to pass several weeks with her this summer?"

"Why not?" replied the young man as he stretched out his legs, smiled to himself and pulled at his mustache. "I give myself one month to knock out those old-fashioned notions and bring about an engagement."

"Because he found it old-fashioned around here," was the quiet reply.

"And you would make her happy?" "Tolerably happy. Couldn't expect her to demand too much, you know."

"And now the thing is off, of course. Did she say what sort of a young lady it was?"

"A little old-fashioned, as I took it."

"Uh! That's the way I understand it. Wants to be treated as if she was the only pebble on the beach. Got what they call old-fashioned notions. Thinks one person as good as another, and so on. Expects every street car conductor to raise his hat to her as he takes her fare."

"But as a lady, isn't she entitled to the fullest respect from your sex?" was asked.

"O, yes, in a way, but she should get those cranky notions out of her head. The rest of us don't propose to admit that one person is as good as another. Our society is graded according to wealth, education and refinement, and you must admit it. A place for everybody, and everybody in this place. I stand by the old-fashioned strawberry shortcake, but not by the old-fashioned notions of equality."

"And the young woman you were inquiring about—does she know your views on the subject?" asked the housekeeper after a silence, during which she had to fan away the cigar smoke blowing in her face.

"Can't say, and shan't trouble myself about it. Marriage first and reform afterwards. She needs a guardian, you know. Hang it, why did that silly man go sloshing around out West and break his bones and spoil our plans?"

"You speak as if you were sure of winning the girl."

"Why not?" replied the young man as he stretched out his legs, smiled to himself and pulled at his mustache. "I give myself one month to knock out those old-fashioned notions and bring about an engagement."

"Because he found it old-fashioned around here," was the quiet reply.

Actual Number of Unemployed in Milwaukee Totals 7,652 Against Reputed 20,000 and 30,000.

Milwaukee, March 14.—It is generally conceded that the first two weeks of March have been a disappointment in business. Local considerations aside the broader fields of finance and commerce have been waiting. One large element as the big cash showing made by the national banks on the 4th, showed, is the waiting incident to arranging for the new banking system. The national banks are holding on to cash to be prepared to go into the new reserve bank and have a lot of money on hand against the experiment. One undoubted evidence that the bankers themselves are still in doubt and unable to see into a mill-stone farther than other people, is the small number of state and private banks that have shown any anxiety to go into the new national system. The national banks were obliged to get in or get out of business, so they made, in virtue of necessity, and the state banks seem willing to let them do the experimenting. The great conservatism of the banking situation is the largest element of safety in present conditions. The banks as a rule are taking no chances.

Number of Unemployed.

Not many weeks ago there was a statement made that 20,000 men were unemployed in Milwaukee, and I had it from such good authority that I ventured to publish it. Not a great while afterward two well known people interested in the management of charity work sent out an appeal for help and over their own signatures said that they "knew" that the unemployed in Milwaukee numbered 30,000. Since then there has been little spending of business and if anything it is now more slack, so it was not a little surprising one day this week to read in the local papers that Chief of Police Janssen says there are 7,652 unemployed persons in the city, of whom 6,820 are residents and only 1,937 skilled craftsmen. There are 4,842 foreigners among the unskilled laborers who have no jobs and 952 who do not want work if they could get it. These figures are the result of a house to house census taken by the police for the United States Commission of Industrial Relations, so they are not guesswork. Such figures furnish an excellent illustration of the exaggeration that besets every public matter in these days. The facts are a trifle under one fourth of the worst report and more 150% under the best one made by the solicitors for charity. It is this sort of thing that is wearing out a lot of rivers who want to be generous with real need but who get wearisome of being misled and having their feelings wrought upon by professional or part workers. It has not been so hard to raise money in Milwaukee for some years as it has this winter and one great reason is that people who give are getting skeptical about the uses to which their money is put. Not suspicious of graft but afraid of incompetence and too much sentimentality.

Good Work on Erie Boats. (Advertisement.)

The International Joint Commission has been looking into the pollution of the water of the Great Lakes. It made a report that is not yet out which indicates that in many places the lake waters should not be used for drinking purposes. The officials of the Erie railroad Lake Line took the hint and without waiting for suggestion have prepared to install water purifying systems on all their ships. The fast ship F. D. Underwood will be among the first thus outfitted. But the orders go farther than this. Precaution and require the commanders to take water only in certain specified safe areas and to avoid taking water in those designated as unsafe. Even the intake of a boat's pump will be boiled out with steam and sterilized after leaving a harbor and before taking in water. As the boats of this line carry freight and not passengers these precautions are taken for the health of the officers and men of the Erie fleet, which is good business, as well as humane. To make sure that the precautions are observed the water system will be under lock and key and in charge of the engineer on duty and only the master shall determine where water may be taken.

Drug Store Weights.

The city sealer has been busy lately among the drug stores on the east side of Milwaukee and a report was published the other day to the effect that more than 500 small weights and 300 measuring glasses have been confiscated in one month. Some of the weights were from 20 to 50 per cent short. Such a report indicates rank crookedness among this class of merchants, and the names should be published as honest men, if there are such, should be freed from such a nasty, sneak thief's suspicion. A man will beat customers in weights if he dares, yet the sealer goes on his merry round year after year and we read about these confessions and an occasional fine, but the crooked scales and weights and measures seem to get back into business a few months we read of another batch and a few more tons dumped into the lake. We hear a good deal about "efficiency" and I suppose this illustrates it, for it is not a distemper local to Milwaukee, and the inference is fair that if such crookedness was really stopped there would be fewer officials on the pay roll. It is perhaps a part of the weakness of too much officialdom.

Registration Peril.

Several cases have come up that show the perils of registration by men who are not entitled to vote. It is a serious offense and punishable by not less than one nor more than three years in the penitentiary to register if not a qualified voter. There is a necessity for men to be careful, for not all of those who have been voting for years without their second papers, seem to know they are not voters.

La Crosse Golden Wedding.

Dr. and Mrs. Wendell A. Anderson of La Crosse celebrated their golden wedding on Monday last and sent to their friends a unique souvenir of their anniversary in the shape of an announcement card enclosed in a flexible case of their marriage certificate which was issued in Portland, Maine, in 1864. Their many friends, everywhere, will extend congratulations and "many returns of the day." Fifteen years ago Dr. Anderson was a young surgeon of the Army of the Potomac who had been made a major for distinguished bravery on the field of battle. Dr. and Mrs. Anderson both have long been exemplars of the right sort of independent self-reliance and up-to-date American citizenship. Their golden wedding was without fanfare, but the event is one deserving of notice for the sake of their friends.

True Companions.

There are some men and women in whose company we are always at our best. At the best stops in our nation we are drawn out by their intercourse, and we find a music in our souls never there before.—Rev. Professor Henry Drummond.

THE OLD-FASHIONED GIRL.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, March 13.—Mrs. W. D. Ames of Brodhead visited her mother, Mrs. John Kelley on Thursday and Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Burtress are planning to move into the rooms over the Farmer's and Merchants bank where the Egerteds formerly lived.

Ernest Klein who has been attending the "short course" at the State University, came to Orfordville on Friday and will work for the coming season on the "Brown Bessie" farm.

L. E. Barnum, village clerk was in Janesville on Thursday in attendance upon the County Meeting of Township and Village Clerks.

John Shafer has been in charge of the local station for the past two days during the absence of D. Mowen, who is in Madison.

M. J. Sampson had the misfortune to nearly sever one finger of his left hand while operating a saw at his shop. The end of the injured digit held by only a small piece of cuticle and the doctor has but little expectation of being able to save it.

Mrs. Carson Cole of Winesap, Washington, is spending a few days with Mrs. Julia Reeder.

Mrs. Will Munger of Beloit is spending a few days visiting her parents, in the town of Spring Valley.

Sanford Soverhill of Janesville was at Orfordville, transacting business on Friday.

Making Good.

Mrs. Justwood—"Does your husband always live up to his promise of his courtship days?" Mrs. Longwood—"Always. In those days he said he wasn't good enough for me, and he's been proving it ever since."

"But why—why?" asked Margaret's cousin after he had departed.

"Because he found it old-fashioned around here," was the quiet reply.

A Man's Size Job

Take the worst pest-spot on the face of the earth—

Roll up your sleeves and start cleaning it up. Keep at it nine years.

Finally turn that spot into the healthiest strip of land under tropic skies.

That's the job.

And that's what a determined fellow-countryman of yours has done on the Isthmus of Panama.

Unless Col. Gorgas and his men had exterminated the fever-carrying mosquito, your canal could not have been built without frightful loss of life—probably never built at all.

Folks, our national heroes aren't all dead yet. Why not learn something about the living ones? Read this thrilling story of American persistence in—

THE PANAMA CANAL

by Frederic J. Haskin
Author of "The American Government"

The triumph of American medical science is but one part of this comprehensive 400-page book. Every step of this greatest engineering project the world has known is vividly told.

You will learn how we upset and carted away a mountain. How the mighty gates of the locks will yawn and snap shut. How a gun that throws a ton of steel 21 miles will keep the peace.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Bobby will soon be breaking into Wall street.—

By F. LEIPZIGER

COULD NOT STAND ON FEET

Mrs. Baker So Weak—Could Not Do Her Work—Found Relief In Novel Way.

Adrian, Mich.—"I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache and got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would get so weak that I would have to get a drink every few minutes, and before I did my dusting I would have to lie down. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day I found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' So I did, and after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, 'I don't need any more,' and he said 'You had better take it a little longer anyway.' So I took it for three months and got well and strong."—Mrs. ALONZO E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

Not Well Enough to Work.

In these words is hidden the tragedy of many a woman, housekeeper or wage earner who supports herself and is often helping to support a family on meager wages. Whether in house, office, factory, shop, store or kitchen, woman should remember that there is one tried and true remedy for the ills to which all women are prone, and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It promotes that vigor which makes work easy. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

A WAY OUT

A Resident of Janesville Shows the Way.

There's one effective way to relieve kidney backache.

Liniment and plasters may relieve it;

But they seldom reach the cause.

Backache is cause to suspect the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for disordered kidneys.

Janesville people back them up.

Read a case of it.

Mrs. Eliza Johnson, 118 N. Terrace St., Janesville, Wis., says, "I was a sufferer from kidney trouble and rheumatic pains for over twelve years. My kidneys seemed to get clogged and did not filter the poisons from my system. I got weak and almost helpless at times. My joints swelled and were very sore. It seemed that I could get nothing that would relieve me. Finally I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a supply at the People's Drug Co. I was soon feeling better and my kidneys gradually got stronger. All I said about Doan's Kidney Pills when I recommended them two years ago, holds good. I have just as much confidence in them now as I did then. I often tell other people to take Doan's Kidney Pills. I know they are the best kidney remedy to be had."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

spared not herself in the narration. He did not once interrupt her. All the time she was speaking he was studying the profile of her face as if fascinated by its strange immobility. For the matter of a full half-hour he sat on the rail, his back against a post, his arms folded across the breast of the thick ulster he wore, staring at ago, if it had not been for exposing me to the world as her defender, she protector. She knew she was not morally guilty of the crime of murder. In the beginning she was afraid. She did not know our land, our laws. In time she came to understand that she was in no real peril, but then it was too late. A confession would have placed me in an impossible position.

You see, she thought of me all this time. She loved me as no woman ever loved another. Was not I the wife of the man she had killed, and was not I the noblest of all women in her eyes? God! And to think of what I had planned for her!"

This was the end of the story.

The words died away in a sort of whimpering wail, falling in with the wind to be lost to his straining ears. Her head drooped, her arms hung limply at her side.

For a long time he sat there in silence, looking out over the darkening water, unwilling, unable indeed, to speak. His heart was full of compassion for her, mingling strangely with what was left of scorn and horror. What could he say to her?

At last she turned to him. "Now you know all that I can tell you of Hetty Castleton—or Hetty Glynn. You could not have forced this from me, Brandon. She would not tell you me. I was left for me to do in my own good time. Well, I have spoken. What have you to say?"

"I can only say, Sara, that I thank God for everything," he said slowly. "For everything."

"I thank God for you, for her and for everything. I thank God that she found him out in time, that she killed him, that you shielded her, that you failed to 'carry out your devilish scheme; and that your heart is very sore today."

"You do not despise me?"

"No. I am sorry for you."

Her eyes narrowed. "I don't want you to feel sorry for me."

"You don't understand. I am sorry for you because you have found yourself out and must be despising yourself."

"You have guessed the truth. I despise myself. But what could be expected of me?" she asked ironically. "As the Wrandalls would say, 'blood will tell.'"

"Nonsense! Don't talk like that!"

It is quite unworthy of you. In spite of everything, Sara, you are wonderful. The very thing you tried to do, the way you went about it, the way you surrendered, makes for greatness in you. If you had gone on with it and succeeded, that fact alone would have put you in the class with the great, strong, virile women of history. It "With the Medicis, the Borgias and—" she began bitterly.

"Yes, with them. But they were great women, just the same. You are greater, for you have more than they possessed: a conscience. I wish I could tell you just what I feel. I haven't the words. I—"

"I only want you to tell me the truth. Do you despise me?"

"Again I say that I do not. I can only say that I regard you with—yes, with awe."

"As one might think of a deadly serpent."

"Hardly that," he said, smiling for the first time. He crossed over and laid his hand on her shoulder. "Don't think too meanly of yourself. I understand it all. You lived for months without a heart that's all."

"You put it very gently."

"I think I am right. Now, you've got it back, and it's hungry for the sweet, good things of life. You want to be happy. You want to love again and to be loved. You don't want to be pitied. I understand. It's the return of a heart that went away long months ago and left an empty place that you filled with gall. The bitterness is gone. There is something sweet in its place. Am I not right?"

She hesitated. "If you mean that I want to be loved by my enemies, Brandon, you are wrong," she said clearly. "I have not been chastened in that particular."

"You mean the Wrandalls?"

"It is not in my nature to love my enemies. We stand on the same foot, as before, and always shall. They understand me, I understand them. I am glad that my project failed, not for their sake, but for my own."

He was silent. This woman was beyond him. He could not understand a nature like this.

"You say nothing. Well, I can't ask you to understand. We will not discuss my enemies, but my friends. What do you intend to do in respect to Hetty?"

"I am going to make her my wife," he said levelly.

She turned away. It was now quite dark. He could not see the expression on her face.

"What you have heard does not weaken your love for her?"

"No. It strengthens it."

"You know what she has done. She has taken a life with her own hands. Can you take her to your bosom, can you make her the mother of your own children? Remember, there is blood on her hands."

"Yes, sir" replied the ticket seller.

"What's the show tonight?"

"As You Like It."

"Wall, that's accomodatin'," said the native. "Seelin' as you give us our choice, mother and me'll take Romeo and Juliet."

"I enjoyed your sermon this morning very much," said Mark Twain to a clergyman of his acquaintance. "I welcomed it like an old friend. I have a book at home containing every word of it."

"You have not," said the preacher.

"I have," returned the humorist.

"Well, send that book to me. I'd like to see it."

"You shall," Mark Twain replied.

And he sent the next morning an unabridged dictionary to the minister.

"Murder" Among Animals.

Murder is not uncommon among animals, "murder" in this sense being applied to that kind of killing that has nothing to do with the struggle for existence, but which arises from malice, pure and simple, or from downright passion. Storks, it seems, frequently kill members of the flock which, at the time of migration, either refuse to follow them or are unable to do so.

March is the most dangerous month of the year because the change of season is more than a good many systems can stand. Too often it is true that the sick "last only till spring." But if the system is fortified, if the impurities are driven from the blood, and the nerve tissues fed with wholesome medicine, there is no danger in the change of seasons. Father John's Medicine is invaluable as a tonic in the spring.

It strengthens the system and drives out the poison, and in this manner builds up the body. It is this power that has made it so successful in treating colds and all throat and lung troubles. No weakening, stimulants, morphine or other dangerous drugs.

If you have any difficulty in securing Father John's Medicine from your druggist, write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., enclosing $1.00 for a large bottle by express prepaid.

Dinner Stories

When Sothern and Marlowe were playing in a western city last season a rural couple stepped up to the box office and the man said: "Playin' Shakespeare here, they tell me?"

"Yes, sir" replied the ticket seller.

"What's the show tonight?"

"As You Like It."

"Wall, that's accomodatin'," said the native. "Seelin' as you give us our choice, mother and me'll take Romeo and Juliet."

SHINGLES AND WIDE CLAPBOARDS

By John Henry Newson

"Home of Character" No. 130

This small house of frame construction is carried out in shingles from above the first story windows. The chimneys, porch, walls and foundation are rough red brick. The space between the top of the first floor windows and foundation is sided with 10-inch strip lap siding. It is a splendid example of artistic effect obtained with inexpensive material. The plan is square and compact while the unbroken roof lines take away the usual high-shouldered effect of a square house.

The fireplace and alcove at the end of the living room and between the vestibule and stairway are handsome features of the lower floor and give just the required effect to lift the plan from the common-place. The four bedrooms are large and plenty of closet space is provided. Upon close study, the completeness of this plan in all its details will be readily seen.

A variation of this design has been shown on this page under design No. 144, with an entirely different exterior and slight modifications in the floor plan.

No. 130—Size 24x30 feet. Cost $3100. Can be built for $2900 to $3500.

Any Gazette reader who desires further information concerning No. 130 should address John Henry Newson, Homes of Character Dept., The Gazette. There will be no charge for Mr. Newson's answers.

Build Your Barn Right

Constructing your barn is a scientific problem in efficiency—just like the construction of a modern factory. You should build it.

To take care of your increase in crops the next few years.
To stand the enormous strains to which it will be subjected.
To save steps and permit quickest loading of contents.
To conserve the quality of your crops and the health of your animals.

The better your barn meets these requirements the more money you will make.

No one is better able than we are to help you make your barn what it should be. For years we have dealt in barn building materials and studied barn construction.

Talking it over with us will not put you under the slightest obligation.
